

VPC COVID RISK DISCLOSURE

This disclosure must be shared with all participants in group meetings in the VPC building until such time as no further COVID precautions are recommended.

Anyone who is not fully vaccinated against Covid-19 continues to be at-risk to become infected, especially from much more infectious variants such as the Delta Variant. Best efforts to follow all CDC Guidelines continues to be VPC Policy related to COVID safety.

CDC Guidelines recommend masking and social distancing for all who are not fully-vaccinated for all indoor activities, as well as masking and distance for others who are more vulnerable due to reduced immunity. VPC requires the same. When Fairfax County is classified as either SUBSTANTIAL or HIGH Community Transmission, all group gatherings within VPC's building require masks completely covering nose and mouth, REGARDLESS of Vaccination Status.

VPC will not be responsible to assess or document vaccination status for most group gatherings held at VPC, with some special exceptions. However, any group that wishes to do so may assess vaccination status or limit participation based on vaccination status if they so choose.

VPC's physical plant makes it impossible to guarantee that rooms provided to groups will provide enough space for the unvaccinated to remain socially distanced. For all group gatherings, each group participant must be responsible for assessing personal risk tolerance before entering a meeting, event, or gathering in any VPC meeting space.

Anyone who feels ill should stay home, as should any unvaccinated person with known exposure to Covid-19 within the past 7 days.

When Fairfax County is classified in MODERATE or LOW Community Transmission zones, masks and social distance are not required on the first floor for those who are fully-vaccinated, but may be required on other floors (see the VPC Return to Group Life Policy).

More details are contained in the VPC Return to Group Life Policy and have been provided to all Group Leaders. Your Group Leader will supply other details as situations require.
